To The National Association of Women Business Owners:

It is a great privilege to endorse my colleague Robin Brown, LPC for the Entrepreneurial Spirit Award. I have known Robin for many years and work closely with her in the mental health field, with emphasis on advocacy for children.

Robin not only exhibits compassion and professionalism, she gives her clients dignity and respect. She is well known in this field among mental health professionals, family lawyers, and judges for her forensic work, advocacy for children and adolescents, as well as her expertise in co-parenting and divorce coaching facilitations. She has started programs that have been effective and in place in our community to ensure relationships with children and parents stay intact amongst divorcing couples such as KidShare, "Helping Children Cope with Divorce" Seminars and Divorce Coaching and Mediation.

I cannot overstate what an asset she is to this community and often times I have turned to her for professional advice and can always depend on her for sound judgment and objectivity. What a great honor for Robin to be nominated for this award!

Sincerely,

Alison Beron Frey, LPC

RE: Entrepreneurial Spirit Award Nominee Robin Brown

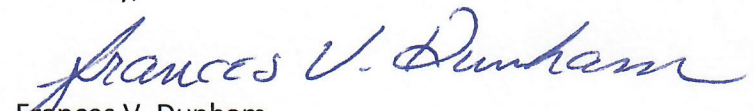

Dear Sir/Maam:

I am writing in support of nominee, Robin Brown. I have known Ms. Brown professionally and personally for nearly twenty years. As a family law attorney, I have relied on Ms. Brown's assistance in high conflict child custody cases and parental reunification cases. Ms. Brown's competence and integrity is matched by no one in this industry. She is so well known for her work, she is often asked to testify as an expert in areas involving co-parenting, parental alienation, parental reunification and divorce issues.

Ms. Brown is a true entrepreneur. She identifies a problem, works tirelessly to find a solution, and by doing so has created a beautiful business in the area of family law. When there is a tough case, Robin's phone number is the first one in the judge's rolodex.

I am very grateful that Robin has been nominated for this award. She is the most deserving friend and colleague.

Sincerely,

Frances V. Dunham

To Whom It May Concern:

Greetings. I have been asked to submit a recommendation on behalf of Robin Brown Walton for an Entrepreneurial Award with the National Association of Women Business Owners. I support Ms. Walton enthusiastically as recipient of this award.

Robin has been the owner of Divorce Coaching and Consultation Services going on three years now. She provides high quality services for parties and attorneys coping with divorce and family law issues. Her organization does an excellent job of supporting and guiding parties and children through extremely difficult and trying times. Her organization provides parenting facilitation, parenting coordination, child advocacy, forensic interviewing, and parenting coaching and counseling.

Previously, Robin was founder and executive director of KidShare, an organization that provided similar supportive services for children and families for several years, dealing with the emotional and legal fallout from divorce and child custody issues.

As a psychologist heavily involved in forensic services for children and families, I have worked closely with Robin and her organization in many cases for almost a decade. Robin is an outstanding leader who provides excellent quality services that aid members of our community in a very difficult area. She does so with integrity and dignity, and is widely respected by local attorneys and other service providers.

Thank you for considering my recommendation.

Respectfully submitted,

To whom it may concern:

I am happy to give a recommendation to Robin Brown for her assistance as a Coach during a difficult time in my life. Ms. Brown, has shown a dedication that is rare in today's age towards me as a client. Ms. Brown has consistently made herself available to help with many difficult situations over the last several months. The level of service provided to myself has far exceeded my expectations. Her guidance and counsel has allowed me to maintain a healthy and productive relationship with my children.

There has never been a day since hiring Ms. Brown that she has not been available to guide and direct me through difficult decisions in my personal life, I could not imagine dealing with life changes I am currently facing including child custody, the change in family status as well as the financial issues associated with those changes. Ms. Brown has given up personal, vacation, weekend, and time at nights answering communications to ensure that I as a client was making the best possible decisions for myself and my family. It is rare to have a professional relationship with someone who shows such compassion and caring towards her client as Ms. Brown shown to myself and my family, both in and out of the court setting.

Sincerely,

To whom it may concern:

I have known Robin Brown for 15 years or more. As background information, a large percentage of my practice for the last 20 years of my 34 years practicing has been in the family law area. I am typically hired on the most litigious of cases where the parents are in a pitch battle for custody. The allegations they will make against each other will be serious and very personal, and mostly embarrassing. I was having a great deal of frustration because the persons that were available to conduct social studies typically had full-time jobs in another field and had limited time and patience to hear the myriad of allegations. Then I met Robin.

Robin has been the hardest-working person in the social studies arena that I have had the pleasure of working with in trying to find the right solution for the case. Robin has always been honest and forthright in her assessments whether they were for or against my client. In other words, she called it the way she saw it and not based on who was writing the check. I cannot emphasize enough how refreshing that is in the litigation arena.

If you are looking for a very intelligent, hard-working and caring person to review your family law issues and work with your employees, then, in my opinion, you have found the person who fits the bill. I will be happy to consult with you about this letter if you ever wanted to talk with me in more detail.

Sincerely,

/s/ Mark E. Cusack

RE: Ms. Robin Brown

Dear Sir, Madam:

On several occasions over the past few years I have had the experience of working with Robin in several Collaborative Divorce settings. The collaborative divorce process is provided for by the Texas Family Code. It is a team effort that typically involves a lawyer for each party, a neutral mental health expert and a neutral financial expert. This process is an alternative to the traditional contested divorce. Robin brings a high degree of competence to the team, particularly when minor children are involved. She is also very effective in keeping the respective parties focused on achieving their goal without the normal adversity that is inherent in contested divorces.

I have been working as an expert in divorce cases for many years and am a strong supporter of the Collaborative alternative. I have seen first-hand how it can preserve relationships going forward compared to the traditional process. The mental health expert plays a key role in this process.

I believe that Robin would be an excellent choice to help your staff in this area.

Yours truly,

Gerald L. Hill, CPA/CFF
